relief grants to the unemployed.

Made the Debt Adjustment Act apply on debts incurred up to July of this year, and cut out the right of appeal to the courts from a finding of the board of appeals.

Abolished interest as from July 1, 1932, on private debts owing since before that time, gave the debtors ten years in which to pay the balances owing, and the standard rates on debts incurring since 1932 to 3 per cent.

Cut the interest rates on municipal debentures to 3 per cent.

Authorized setting up of a provincial credit house and the distribution of dividends to signers of the covenant.

Forbade the courts to issue an injunction against the Government or restrain any action against the Government or any of its members;

Amended a number of existing statutes.

Put themselves on salary, in lieu of seasonal indemnities, and took power to draw one-quarter of the current year's salary at once.

It can never be said that the session was an idle one, that there was any disposition to delay proceedings, or that the enactments were of only minor importance. Quite the contrary, it was a session of feverish activity. There was no time-wasting oratory. And whatever any one may think of the wisdom of the enactments, it is one can admit that they will be far-reaching and of vital effect upon the future of the province, one way or the other.

Fifty Years Ago

From the Files of The Edmonton Bulletin

The recent robbery of the Edmonton stage surprised no one. On the contrary people were surprised that it had not occurred before. It has been simply natural for the past two or three years there has been an immigration of a most undesirable class into the North West.

Immunity from lawless for many years has made them the law of the land. The past year guarding it. At the same time the authorities, instead of keeping a sharp look out for bad characters, have been busy for the most part with the enforcement of the law for the offences of gambling and whisky smuggling, so that they and others would be deterred from going to greater lengths, have practically shut out the eyes of the law. The law is broken and of the presence of the law-breakers, until by this they are looked upon without fear it is not a lawless land, but a lawless one.

The North West prohibitory law, which the Lieutenant-Governor is allowed under the present system to set at defiance or use as an offensive weapon at pleasure, has been further refused towards absurdity by the permission extended to the C.P.R. to sell liquor on their train passing through the Territories. If there is one place on earth where liquor should not be sold it is on a railway train.

A peculiar instance of mob robbery is that the robbers failed to secure the registered master. Another queer as peculiar is that had they secured it the loss would in all probability have been comparatively light. The passenger says it was the smallest registered mail that has gone out in seven months.

General Middleton has denied to the Master Star that Gen. Strange's report altered in the blue book from what it was when he received it from that officer—There may be some truth in this, but it is not the English language has resources put unknown.

a well-to-do American stock-minister of public welfare in Ontario, wrote to the broker's brokers and said:

"The Dominion does not propose to constitute itself a government for the United States tax-dodgers, nor encourage them to run away from their obligations. . . . Our native problems are sufficient to occupy all governmental attention without importing additional ones. . . . I shall do my utmost to prevent Mr. Bishop's address to Canada, on the ground that his opposition to constitutional authority in United States proves him to be an undesirable."

This marks a new standard in citizenship.

Previously, only working people and criminals were refused admission to Canada. Tax-dodgers and money-launderers have been brought money into the country. Fortune-hunters and crooners were admitted, when one working girl was refused entry because she had been a prostitute.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

It is strange they have not made him king.

"Oh, don't be silly," Duncy said. "There's no life in the moon's head. I only wish there was. Then we could take him for a walk."

"Imagine how hard it would be, and most likely on his face he'd land. The strangest thing of all, though, would be if the man should talk."

Just then the little Eskimo in Duncy's ear whispered, "Let's go and find my little sled. I have a clever plan in mind."

"Twirl work, I'm sure, quite easily. If you are game to stick with me, we'll leave the bunch here."

I will tell you what I'm going to do.

"Now, first, I will sit up in front, so I can carry out my plan. In just about a moment, we'll be sliding down this hill."

"I'll steer the sled right. If I can, and crash into the big snowman. Unless I am mistaken, it will give the bunch a thrill."

The next thing that we Duncy knew, right down the hill the small sled flew. Behind the riders hung on tight, a quiet excited pair.

"Oh, Duncy shouted, 'this sounds risky. And then there came a sudden crash. They smashed into the snowman, and his head flew into air."

Curious World

—By William Ferguson

The Lamprey Fish Eats ITS PREY FROM THE INSIDE CUT! IT BORES ITS WAY INTO THE INTERIOR OF LARGER FISH AND EATS UNTIL ONLY THEIR SKIN AND BONES REMAIN.

The lamprey is a most unusual fish. Its mouth is a tube-shaped suction cup, armed around the edge with horn-like teeth. The creature attaches itself to other fish, and rasps away their flesh with the sharp teeth. After a hole is made, it enters the victim's body and continues to feed unobserved.
